IMPORTANT TO ALL.

DR. SWAYNE,

The discoverer and compounder of the far-famed

Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry

and other valuable preparations, entered upon his professional career with the important advantage of a regular medical education in one of the oldest and best schools in Philadelphia, and, perhaps, in the world. He subsequently served a faithful term of practice in the Philadelphia Dispensary, and for many years attended in the Hospital. In these institutions he enjoyed the most ample opportunities of obtaining an insight into diseases in all their various forms, as well as for ascertaining the best methods of their treatment. In offering, therefore, to the people of the United States the fruits of his extensive professional experience in the medical compounds as the best results of his skill and observation, he feels that he is but proffering a boon to every family throughout the land, resting, as he does, confidently in the merits and efficacious virtue of the remedies he herewith commends. The vast amount of testimony from all parts of the world has proven "DOCTOR SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY" the most efficacious remedy known, and it is admitted by our most eminent physicians, and all who have witnessed its wonderful healing properties. The WILD CHERRY in all ages of the world and in all countries where it is known has been justly celebrated for its wonderful medicinal qualities, but its great power to cure some of the worst and most distressing diseases among us was never fully ascertained until the experiments of that skillful physician, Dr. Swayne, had demonstrated its high adaptation, in combination with Pine Tree Tar, and other equally valuable vegetable ingredients, which chemically combined renders it action tenfold more certain and beneficial in curing all diseases of the throat, breast and lungs. DR. SWAYNE'S WILD CHERRY COMPOUND strikes at the root of disease by purifying the blood, restoring the liver and kidneys to healthy action, invigorating the nervous and shattered constitution. If your druggist or storekeeper does not have it, do not be put off by any other remedy that may be offered, but send to us direct, and we will forward a half dozen to any address, freight paid, on receipt of the price, $1 per bottle, or $5 the half dozen. Address letters to DR. SWAYNE & SON, 330 North Sixth street, Philadelphia. No charge will be made for advice.

Ask Your Druggist for Them.

Females and all who value health should never be without DR. SWAYNE'S TAR AND SARSAPARILLA PILLS, as they purify the blood, remove all obstructions, cleanse the skin of all pimples and blotches, and bring the rich color of health to the pale cheek. Female irregularities are restored to a healthy condition. They are a certain cure for sick and Nervous headache. As a dinner Pill, nothing can exceed them; take one, two or three, as may be found necessary; unlike others, they neither gripe, produce nausea, or any other unpleasant sensation, while they are as powerful as it is possible for a medicine to be and be harmless. These Pills cleanse out the disordered humors, enrich and purify the blood, remove all unhealthy bilious secretions of the stomach and bowels, causing a perfectly healthy state of the liver, and are undoubtedly the best cathartic and antibilious medicine yet discovered; and we are determined that the sick shall have them at a price within the means of the poorest (25 cents a box of 30 Pills.) If your druggist or storekeeper has not got them, do not be put off by any others that may be offered in their place, but send to us direct, and we will forward by mail, on receipt of the price, 25 cents a box or five boxes $1.

Itching Piles

is generally preceded by a moisture, like perspiration, distressing itching, as though pin worms were crawling in or about the rectum, particularly at night when undressing, or in bed after getting warm. It appears in summer as well as winter, oftentimes shows itself around the private parts, and is not confined to males only, but is quite as frequent that females are sorely afflicted, particularly in times of pregnancy, extending into the vagina, proving distressing almost beyond the powers of endurance. Cases of long standing, pronounced incurable, have been permanently cured by simply applying

Poetical.

MY CHILD.

I cannot make him dead!
His fair sunshiny head
Is ever bounding round my study chair;
Yet, when my eyes, now dim
With tears, I turn to him,
The vision vanishes—he is not there!

I walk my parlor floor,
And through the open door,
I hear a footfall on the chamber stair;
I'm stepping toward the hall
To give the boy a call;
And then bethink me that—he is not there!

FAREWELL TO SUMMER.

BY GEO. ARNOLD.

Summer is fading; the broad leaves that grew
So freshly green when June was young, are falling;
And all the whisper-haunted forest through
The restless birds in saddened tones are calling:
"Farewell, sweet summer,
Fragrant, fruity summer,
Sweet farewell!"

Upon the windy hills, in many a field,
The honey-bees hum slow above the clover,
Gleaning the latest sweets its blooms may yield,
And, knowing that their harvest time is over,
Sing, half a lullaby and half a knell:
"Farewell, sweet summer,
Honey-laden summer,
Sweet farewell!"

The little brook that babbles 'mid the ferns,
O'er twisted roots and sandy shallows playing,
Seems fain to linger in its eddied turns,
And with a plaintive, purling voice is saying,
Sadder and sweeter than my song can tell:
"Farewell, sweet summer,
Warm and dreamy summer,
Sweet farewell!"

The fitful breeze sweeps down the winding lane,
With gold and crimson leaves before it flying;
Its gusty laughter has no sound of pain,
But in the lulls it sinks to gentle sighing.
And mourns the summer's early broken spell—
"Farewell, sweet summer,
Rosy, blooming summer,
Sweet farewell!"

So bird and bee and brook and breeze make moan,
With melancholy song their loss complaining.
I, too, must join them, as I walk alone
Among the sights and sounds of summer's waning;
I, too, have loved the season passing well—
So farewell, summer,
Fair, but faded summer,
Sweet farewell!

Miscellaneous.

TERESA.

I.

Light, heat, beauty, life-giving south! The artist seeks it for its glorious depths of color; the poet for its classic traditions and dreamy influences; the invalid for its balmy breath and reviving warmth, which stir the pulses that in northern lands cease to beat. Lionel Merton, half poet, half artist, and half invalid, sought it for life both of mind and body; and his delicate frame—sheltered from the chill blasts of the north—woke to a new being in the soft Ausonian climate, whilst his artist eye glanced with a pleased delight over luxuriant plains and olive-planted slopes, with here and there a glimpse of the yellow Tiber flowing majestically along.

He was just now standing in the doorway of the inn, gazing, not at the landscape or the skies, but at a face that had attracted his attention more than once since his arrival at ——. He had seen it first in the beautiful gardens of the villa, not far from the inn, peering through the parted branches of a myrtle, whose dark glossy leaves seemed to form a fitting frame-work for the living picture behind them. But the branches had closed hastily, as the girl met the blue eyes of Lionel fixed steadily upon her.

"We must go home, Tina," said she to the child who was watching the doves wash themselves in the basin of the fountain, and she swung it up to her shoulder, where it wound its tiny hands in her dark hair, loosening some of the coils that fell heavily down below her waist. A flush came over the pale olive skin.

"Thou art a bad child, Tina!" she said, as she hastily twisted up the long tresses under the folds of her white head gear.

The long lustrous eyes had but looked at Lionel for a moment, and yet they seemed to have told him a long story that he had been in the past trying to decipher.

Next he had seen her in church, kneeling in fervent prayer, and had silently watched the changes of her countenance until again she perceived him, and with a startled look rose and fled away.

To-day Teresa stood leaning against a stone pillar, playing with the pink blossom of a catalpa that stood near her, when suddenly she found herself once more face to face with the English stranger.

He had discovered her name—Teresa; daughter of blind Tomas Cecchi and his bed-ridden wife. She was a good daughter and worked hard to support her parents. To-day she seemed to be taking life easily—drinking in the splendor of the purple mists and golden sheets of sunlight with true Italian indolence.

"Dolce far ni nte!" thought Lionel, as he looked at the statuelike figure, and the head thrown back, partly with weariness, partly with an intense appreciation of the beauty around her.

But Teresa's rest was not to be of long duration. The mercanti of the Campagna had sent for laborers to gather in the harvest and men and women were forming into bands to join in the work. Teresa was going, so gossip had told Lionel, and to him it seemed a sacrilege that the beautiful maiden should toil and slave with the common multitude. But what could he do? And in the midst of his meditations the girl raised her face, and again their eyes met.

"Teresa?" The name burst involuntarily from his lips.

She started and blushed, but this time did not flee away. She looked at Lionel.

"Si, signore," she answered.

"That is a pretty flower," said Lionel; "will you give it to me?"

She made no reply, but put the blossom into his hand. And so the acquaintance was made, and the two chatted away in the sunshine.

II.

Lionel had gone to Tomas Cecchi's lodging.

"But your daughter is not strong enough for such work!" said he, in conclusion to a long harangue.

The old man shrugged his shoulders. "Poverty," said he, "is a hard master, and Teresa is a good girl."

"Too good to endanger her life in the toils of the Campagna. Think of the risk, the labor, the heat, the foul evening mists?"

But Tomas looked back beyond the discomforts and remembered a time when the plains resounded with song and laughter, and the wine was broached and hearts were light.

"I found my wife there," said he, "and Teresa may find a husband."

Lionel instinctively drew back. A husband among those laboring peasants! impossible; for in his eyes Teresa was worthy to be the bride of a king.

"Can you not find a substitute for your daughter? I——," and then he hesitated, for Teresa had come into the room.

"How much will it cost to get a substitute, Teresa?"

Teresa laughed. "Giovanetta would pay if she could get to go in my place," said she. "There are too many ready and willing to go."

"Let them go then," responded Lionel, eagerly.

"The signore forgets we must have money," returned Teresa.

Scarcely thinking of what he was doing, Lionel had poured out the contents of a purse full of English gold upon the table. The quick ear of Tomas caught the sound; he stretched out his hand as if to clutch the ringing coin, but Teresa sprang between, turning a flashing face upon Lionel.

"We are not beggars!" she exclaimed; "I work for my bread!"

"Will you not let me help you?" asked Lionel, in a low tone.

"You cannot," she replied, in an equally low voice; and the flash died out of her face, for Lionel's tone was very humble, and his eyes had spoken something to her that her heart answered. She gathered the money together and put it into his hands.

"It must not be," said she, as she sorrowfully departed.

"You art a fool, child!" said Tomas Cecchi, when Lionel was out of hearing. "These English know not what to do with their gold, and we should have been all the better for it."

III.

Slowly plodded the large gray oxen over the plains of the Campagna; lazily sauntered the driver at their side. Here and there one heard the sounds of merriment; there again were silent toilers; here worn out laborers who had crept into the shade and fallen asleep, and above stretched the blue heavens, still and cloudless, over the gray and purple sweeps of far off landscape, with here and there a patch of sun-gilt water.

All this Lionel saw, for he had obtained a lodging in one of the large stone farmhouses, since money will obtain anything, and the fair, delicate looking, generous Englishman was popular among the poor Italian peasants.

Teresa knew that he was there, but she avoided him; and he, seeing this, only watched her from a distance, and gave no token that she was more to him than any other laborer on the vast plains. He had seen Tomas and his wife before he had followed to the Campagna, and they were amply provided for during their daughter's absence.

Lionel Merton had fallen in love, and he sat down and took the matter into deliberate consideration. His first thought was that Teresa was a queen; fit to be the wife of any man, was his second; why not of himself? was the third; and that she should be, if possible, was the fourth. Yet how to proceed was the difficulty. He felt, with all the keen sensitiveness of an Englishman to absurd situations, that he was somewhat absurdly placed at the present moment; for Teresa, calmly pursuing her work, gave him no opportunity of addressing her without bringing the eyes of the multitude upon himself and the handsome maiden.

IV.

Teresa was the one to break the silence. She feared the pestilential breath that comes with the chill blasts and heavy dews after the heat of the day might take effect on Lionel Merton. She noted a lassitude and feverishness, which he imputed to his state of mind, and suddenly she appeared before him.

"Signore, you must flee from hence, or you wilt die!"

"And you will have killed me, Teresa."

"No; it is the poisonous mists of the Campagna."

"What brought me hither to breathe them?" asked Lionel, abruptly.

"The signore forgets that I begged him not to think of so rash a scheme," replied Teresa, evading the question. "For me, who am accustomed to the changes, it is safe; for the signor it is death, and he must go."

"Whither?"

"Back to Frascati, if he so wills it; or, better, perhaps, away from Italy."

"I cannot live away from Italy; it is my life, my hope; and here I can study art and make myself a home. Here I can be happy, and yet you send me away!"

"I have told the signore that I am not fitted for his wife. Besides, my duty is to my parents; I must tend them till they die."

"Yet you leave them now!"

"Only for their benefit."

"It would benefit them more if you were my wife."

But Teresa shook her head mournfully. "Non e possibile," she said, decidedly.

"Yet you love me, Teresa?"

"Yes," said she, with emotion; "but I must do my duty. I have made a vow not to marry so long as my parents live."

"It is a foolish vow," said Lionel.

"It is nevertheless a vow," she replied, firmly. "Signore, you must go. Addio, Addio!"

But as she spoke a sudden shivering seized her—the fever that she had dreaded for Lionel had fallen upon herself.

V

Teresa had but few friends among the laborers in the Campagna; but one woman, whom Lionel recognized as belonging to the Frascati, was willing enough to undertake the office of nurse in consideration of the lavish payment for it, and to accompany her home when she was out of danger.

Then Lionel turned his steps northward, seeking no interview, for he knew that Teresa was firm in her resolution, and that it would be an insult to her piety and her sense of filial duty to attempt to shake it. So he hastened away, hoping by constant change and excitement to drive her image from his heart.

He passed the frontiers, and then the cold north winds began to blow, and he could not face them, and Lionel Merton learned that his only hope of life was indeed in Italy It seemed almost as though fate were bidding him return, and so he passively resigned himself, and traced by slow stages the way to Frascati, delaying as he drew nearer and nearer to it, and yet with every intention of seeing Teresa once more.

He took up his residence at the inn again, but saw nothing of Teresa; neither did he hear of her until upon making inquiries from the innkeeper he found that immediately upon her return from the Campagna her parents had been taken ill and were now in the last stages of disease and were poorer than ever. But Lionel shrank from intruding, although he and the old Cecchi had been very friendly.

Still Teresa had a consciousness of his presence in the constant supplies of all needed for the sufferers at the hands of the innkeeper, and she did not refuse them, for she was almost worn out with her vigil and perhaps regarded this unexpected assistance as an answer to her prayers, and therefore not to be flung ungratefully aside.

* * * * * * * * *

And then came the end. The death angel closed the old man's eyes, and the mourners carried him to his grave—soon to be followed by the wife who had journeyed with him through the world. And then Teresa was left an orphan alone in the world. And then Lionel once more said:

"Teresa, you love me?"

And Teresa replied, as she had done before, "Yes." But this time she added: "The vow that parted us is accomplished, and I am no longer forbidden to be your wife."—Cassel's Magazine.

Dead Letters.

The paradise of fools, "to few unknown," is the mental comment as one sees the many evidences of people's carelessness, foolishness and stupidity which are displayed at the Dead Letter Office Museum. Arranged in glass cases on the four sides of the room are all these waifs of travel, displayed with a view to their respective attractions, and suggestive of the treachery of postage stamps and the adventure which sometimes overtakes even [illegible]. There is [illegible] not smaller than a [illegible] or larger than a stove-pipe [illegible].

Such a [illegible] seems, so frequent of disappointment and [illegible] hopes! Locks of hair—there are whole switches of them—and as for photographs, we are told there are 49 bushels of them in the basement of the building. But fancy yourself the recipient of a nice parcel from the hands of the postman some morning, which upon being opened discovers a live snake! Whether one would go into raptures or hysteries at such a treasure would be a matter of taste, I suppose. But, here, people do send snakes through the mail, and sometimes they come back to the Dead-Letter Office for want of a claimant, and we see them leading a serenely spiritual existence in a glass jar among other stray postal curiosities. It is a fact that a postmaster once found a small live alligator disporting among the letters and papers in a mail-bag.

There was also a bouquet of fresh flowers, which had slipped out of its box; and a couple of empty boxes, very similar in size and shape, and both addressed to ladies, left the poor man in doubt as to which the alligator belonged, and to which the flowers.

One can hardly realize that there is a daily average of 12,000 or 15,000 dead letters, or about 400,000 a month. Allowing one person for a letter, there are 400,000 persons every month who undertake to send letters either without stamps, without addresses, or with cancelled stamps, insufficient postage, or illegible or incorrect addresses. Many of them are without stamp or address, and often with no signature which gives the slightest clew to persons sending them. There are 40,000 a month received that either lack postage or address, or else have insufficient or canceled stamps; and, strange as it may seem, there are sometimes the most valuable letters, often containing currency or drafts for large amounts of money. It is estimated that there is about $3,000,000 in drafts and $75,000 in cash received yearly through dead letters. This is all returned, if possible, to the persons sending it; but if any portion of it fails to find a claimant, it is turned over to the Post-Office fund.

Very little difficulty is experienced in restoring the checks and drafts to the rightful owners, but the money generally comes in small sums, and is usually sent in the most careless, haphazard fashion, and the loss of these small sums and the ignorance or carelessness with which they are launched upon representing a deal of suffering and disappointment.

It is very amusing to see the letters opened, and guess at their contents before they are brought to light. Three out of five of a bundle of unaddressed letters contained money, one of them a $5 note. Then there are such quantities of dress samples in letters. One would imagine that all womankind had discovered a language in the interchange of these scraps of dress fabrics. One-half show their prosperity in bits of silks and satins, and the other half in slips of sixpenny calico, and it is only in the Dead-Letter Office that they meet on common ground. Certainly every fifth letter contains a photograph, and I don't imagine that any great care is taken to return lost photographs; but any one so bereaved has the privilege of rummaging among the forty bushels of human "counterfeits" which have accumulated here.

FRUIT FOR FOOD.—If a child's digestion becomes impaired and the gastric juice becomes weakened or defective in quantity by overeating or bad food, the whole alimentary canal becomes clogged up and filthy, and furnishes nests for such worms as will breed there. In this weakened condition of the system they cannot be destroyed by the process of digestion, and hence great harm comes from them. Now it is an interesting fact that fresh, ripe fruit is the best preventive for this state of things. Dr. Benjamin Rush pointed this out a hundred years ago He made a series of experiments on earth worms, which he regarded as more nearly allied to those that infest the bowels of children than any other, with a view of testing their power of retaining life under the influence of various substances that might be used as worm medicines. The result proved that worms often lived longer in those substances known as poisonous than in some of the most harmless articles of food. For instance, in watery solutions of opium they lived eleven minutes; in infusions of pink roots, thirty-three minutes; in claret wine, but in the juice of red cherries they died in six minutes; in black cherries in five minutes; in red currants in three minutes; in whortleberries in seven minutes, and in raspberries in five minutes. From these experiments Dr. Rush argued that fresh, ripe fruits, of which children are fond, are the most speedy and effective poisons for worms. In practice this theory has proved to be correct.—Cincinnati Gazette.

Rufus Choate's Fence.

I suppose that the story about Rufus Choate's hand writing has been told often. It seems that Mr. Choate, while living on a farm down in Massachusetts, wanted a new fence around the home lot. So he called in his carpenter and had a talk with him in regard to the work, and the next time he went to Boston he got his architect to make a rough sketch, showing his ideas of how he desired the fence to be built. On the day appointed for the work to begin Mr. Choate was summoned away. Just as he was about to start the carpenter appeared, and Mr. Choate pulled the plan out of his vest pocket and hurriedly delivered it, and then drove off to catch the train. Returning after an absence of two weeks, on approaching his home he was filled with amazement, and led to doubt whether he knew where he lived; his home lot was surrounded by a zigzag fence of most extraordinary design. When he saw the old carpenter pounding lustily away he felt reassured as to the identity of the place, but was most puzzled by the marvellous fence.

"Hello!" he shouted, "what are you doing?"

"Doin'?" said the old carpenter, smashing in a ten-penny nail with one blow, "we're doin' some pooty tall work. We've just slung this fence together in a little bit less time than any similar slingin' was ever done in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts! We're two days ahead of contract time now!"

"But, for Heaven's sake, what kind of a fence is this?"

"Don't know. Thought when you gi' me the plan it was the darndest fence I ever heard of, but I supposed you knew what you wanted."

[illegible]—In [illegible] Norway [illegible] [illegible] seem [illegible] peculiar species of nutritious [illegible] which their instinct enables them to find deeply covered with snow. Sometimes [illegible] one hundred start off [illegible], there being nothing provided for them by their exacting masters. Like cattle under similar circumstances, when unladen they stride off miles in different directions. When they are wanted again their sealskin clad drivers get behind them in several directions, and by hallooing, throwing snow balls and making considerable noise, the [illegible] gradually drive [illegible] circle [illegible] he [illegible] the [illegible] encircled by [illegible], the men draw it [illegible], until it strikes [illegible] leg. They neither try to leap over or break through it, but huddle together as close as possible. Finally the two ends meet, held by one person while the others enter under the line and select the animals they want, seizing them by their horns, bringing them out and tying them to something strong enough to hold them until harnessed to a sled. The remainder again scatter in pursuit of moss. Strong, tall and fleet though they are, able with a sweep of their antlers to mow down a score of sturdy Northmen, they cower at the voice of man. Their masters are harsh, rude and unkind to them. They are so timid that the sound of the driver's voice sets them running at such speed that they will die before halting if their drivers continue to urge them

TO PERSONS ABOUT TO MARRY.—There is no rule which philosophers can devise for choosing either husbands or wives wisely that has very much effect, for the young do not trust the old upon that subject, and choice, for women especially, is by no means so free as we all affect to believe. Not one woman in fifty, unless she is for some reason—such as fortune, rank or beauty—a great "catch," has anything like a real power of selection among admirers; and even when she has, she often gives it away in obedience to a passing, possibly sensible, possibly blundering, fancy that she had found an ideal. But we should have said there were two broad rules still worth teaching, because they had some chance of being believed, and they were these: Let the woman's first requisite be a man whose home will be to him a rest, and the man's first object a woman who can make home restful. It is the man with many interests, with engrossing occupations, with plenty of people to fight, with a struggle to maintain against the world, who is really the domestic man, in the wife's sense, who enjoys home; who is tempted to make a friend of his wife, who relishes prattle, who feels in the small circle where nobody is above him and nobody unsympathetic with him, as if he were in a heaven of ease and reparation.—London Spectator.

THE RUSSIAN WOLF.—Readers of the once popular story, the "Exiles of Siberia," and other similar tales, have made the reading public familiar with the habits of the Russian wolf, and the tales of travelers give us an idea of the danger and frequency with which these animals are encountered. But an alleged official statement, recently published in that country, if it be authentic, shows that truth is stranger than fiction.

In the district of Vologda, according to the official statement, the wolves destroyed, in the year 1872, 14,000 head of large cattle and 35,000 head of swine and sheep, the area of the district being 354,000 square "versts." The verst is about two-thirds of an English mile. In all Russia, exclusive of the Baltic and Polish provinces, 741,900 head of cattle were destroyed in one year, making an estimated loss of five millions of dollars.

In 1875 no less than two hundred human beings lost their lives by wolves. Bears, foxes and other wild animals do their share of damage, and the aggregate of their mischief is something serious to contemplate, There would seem to be no effectual remedy for Russia is a thinly populated country and the people do not appear to have the hunting passion of our American borderers.

The appetite of the Russian wolf is enormous. His tenacity of life is astonishing, and he has the 'possum's trick of pretending to be dead. It is related in the publication from which we quote that a peasant, finding what he supposed to be a dead wolf, took the presumed carcass home. In the night the peasant heard a noise and found the animal on the table. It jumped at the peasant's throat, and the wife, who rushed out for help, found her husband dead on her return.

Heroism Then and Now.

Heroism is a drug in the English market. Really it is so cheap that it doesn't pay any more. John Chiddy, a quarryman on the Bristol and Exeter railway, saw a big block of stone on the track just as the train came thundering down at the rate of fifty miles an hour. He leaped on the track and tumbled the stone out of the way and was killed in the exploit which saved the train from what might have proved a terribly fatal accident. A subscription was asked for his widow and children, and £3 17s, were subscribed, the railway giving nothing, as usual in such cases. The chancellor of the exchequer was appealed to, but he had no funds for such a purpose, though the same day England paid £29,101 to extinguish a pension to the family of a Dutch captain who was killed two centuries ago. To be sure, he was a soldier and perished on a field of glory, like the Duke of Schonberg, for whose death in the battle of the Boyne his descendants got half a million pounds. Poor John Chiddy were merely a quarryman, and lost his life in heroically saving a crowded passenger train Three pounds seventeen! It is a small sum; but heroes are so very plenty in these days!

Ambergris.

The perfume made from ambergris is well known, but the material itself and the means of gathering it, are not generally understood. We have, therefore, taken the following interesting notes on this subject from the National Oil Gazette:

Of the few fragrant substances furnished by the animal kingdom, ambergris is one of the most remarkable. It is found floating in the sea, or deposited on the beach, in lumps varying from a few ounces to fifteen, twenty [illegible] a hundred pounds. [illegible] weight have been [illegible]. The [illegible] Society of Amsterdam is [illegible] in the possession of a piece weighing [illegible] hundred and eighty-two pounds, and valued at some $50,000.

Ambergris is most abundantly found in the Japanese waters, at the Molucca Isles, and on the coast of Coromandel, Southern India, Madagascar and Africa. Neither is it rare in the Atlantic, being frequently met with on the coasts of Brazil, and occasionally round the island of Jamaica, and along the shores of Florida and the Carolinas; still [illegible] frequently on the European coasts.

The Boy as a Barbarian.

The world the boys lives in is separate and distinct from the world the man lives in. It is a world inhabited only by boys. No events are important or of any moment save those affecting boys. How they ignore the presence of their elders on the streets, shouting out their calls, their invitations, their appointments, from our midst, as from the veriest solitude! They have peculiar calls, whistles, pass-words, by which they communicate with each other at long distances, like birds or wild creatures. And there is a genuine wildness about these notes, as about those of a fox or coon. The boy is a savage, a barbarian in his taste—devouring roots, leaves, bark, unripe fruit, etc.; and in the kind of music or discord he delights in, they have their fashions that spread from city to city. In one of our large cities the rage at one time was an old tin can with a string attached, out of which they tortured the most savage and ear-splitting discords. The police was obliged to interfere and suppress the nuisance. On another occasion, at Christmas, they all come forth with tin horns, and nearly drove the town distracted with the hideous uproar. Another savage trait of the boy is his untruthfulness. Corner him up, and the chances are ten to one that he will lie his way out. Conscience is a plant of slow growth in the boy. If caught in one lie, he invents another. I knew a boy who was in the habit of eating apples in school. His teacher finally caught him in the act and, without removing his eyes from him, called him to the middle of the floor. "I saw you this time," said the teacher. "Saw me what?" said the boy innocently. "Bite that apple," replied the teacher, "No sir," said the rascal. "Open your mouth," and from its depths the teacher, with his thumb and finger, took out the piece of apple. "Didn't know it was there," said the boy, unabashed. Nearly all the moral sentiments and graces are late in maturing in the boy. He has no proper self-respect till past his majority. Of course there are exceptions, but they are mostly wind-falls.—Scribner's Monthly.

A YOUNG MAN OF CHARACTER.—New York has a few old fashioned business men left—men who must understand that a young man's character is of the right stamp before they will listen to his application for employment. To such a man a young chap—who had been previously posted by a friend—came, the other day, to secure a vacant place of book-keeper. He wore a standing collar, a white tie, and a very solemn look, and was more favorably received than he had anticipated. "You belong to a church?" queried the merchant.

The young man named his favorite church.

"You are strictly temperate?"

The young man replied that he had never tasted liquor in his life.

"That is good," mused the merchant, chewing at a blotting pad. "You have other recommendations?"

"Only this," answered the applicant, pulling out a pocket Bible. He fell back, thinking he had a clinched on the old man.

The merchant slowly opened the book, removed a Jack of clubs from between the leaves, and slowly asked: which do you wish to present as a further recommendation?"

That was where the pause came in, and it hasn't been broken since.

A kind uncle having heard that his young dog of a nephew had again taken to play and lost a considerable sum, resolves to reclaim him.

"Gaming," he says, "is the most frightful of vices. The gambler is no longer his own——"

The nephew does not appear moved. The uncle passes his hand across his forehead as if to drive away a horrible recollection, then says:

"Come, let me make a confession to you; I myself once played. Do not gloat over me—I only played once—at ecarte—and (in a voice broken with sobs) I gained $1.33½."

"Well?" said the nephew, sufficiently astonished.

"Well, in my calmer moments, when the excitement of the gaming table had passed away, when I reflected that though I had gained $1.33½ I might perhaps have lost it, ah! the terrible night that I passed. I have never touched a card since."

INDIANA AND OHIO.

Next Tuesday, October 10th, Indiana and Ohio hold their State elections. There are three tickets in the field in each state; in Indiana, Democratic, Republican and Greenback; in Ohio, Democratic, Republican and Prohibition. That the Republicans virtually concede Indiana to the Democrats is indicated by two things: their public speakers have mostly left the State and gone to Ohio, and Senator Morton has proclaimed that the Democrats are filling the State with illegal voters. This is rich, especially so coming as it does from the most unscrupulous demagogue (Ben Butler not excepted) who ever burdened a distressed and swindled community. It is the game the Republicans have been playing for a dozen years past, almost ever since Mr. Morton deserted the Democratic party, and his accusation now against that party reads strangely in the light of the developments of the past few years. The charge is made to cover, if possible, the cause of his present party's defeat; he sees that it is inevitable and seeks to throw on the Democrats the onus of corruption. It will not deceive many.

In Ohio the contest waxes warmer and the Republicans no longer deem the State safe. They are exerting every energy, spending money and providing the best oratorical ability they have to secure the State.

Should both Indiana and Ohio be carried by the Democrats the election of Tilden will be assured. With these two States, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and the Southern States, all of which are secure, there can be little doubt of Tilden's success. It is this that has made the campaign in these two Western States the most vigorous and exciting since Harrison's time in 1840.

West Virginia likewise holds her election on the 10th, with three tickets in the field, but the Democratic majority is too strong to be overcome, and not being in the least a doubtful State but little has been done by the Republicans to endeavor to change the result.

PENNSYLVANIA DAY.

The people of the State did themselves credit on Thursday of last week, which had been set apart as the day for Pennsylvanians to attend the Centennial Exhibition. The crowds which poured into the city of Philadelphia exceeded anything heretofore known in this country. Accounts differ somewhat as to the actual number of people present, the Philadelphia Times and the Ledger placing the figures at 251,463 and other papers at 257,285. The official report will be necessary to determine the exact number. The exercises began in the judges' hall with music and addresses. Gov. Hartranft was escorted by the veteran corps of the First regiment. The oration was delivered by Hon Benjamin H. Brewster and addresses by Gen. Hawley, President Welsh, Gov. Hartranft, ex-Govs. Bigler and Pollock, ex-Senator Scott, Judge Strong of the U. S. Supreme Court and others. In the evening the grounds were illuminated by magnesium lights and colored fires, and there was a magnificent display of fireworks.

It is not probable that there will be so large an attendance during the continuance of the exhibition. The crowd was even larger than the most sanguine statisticians estimated. Pennsylvania has certainly good reasons to be proud of her children.

[The official count, received since the above was written, gives the total admissions as 274,919.]

THE FEDERAL CONSTITUTION.—Article 14, Section 4, of the Constitution reads as follows:

The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, SHALL NOT BE QUESTIONED. But not the United States, nor any State, shall assume or pay any debts or obligation incurred in AID OF INSURRECTION OR REBELLION AGAINST THE UNITED STATES, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held ILLEGAL AND VOID."

The above provision of the Constitution forever disposes of the pretense that there are any persons in the United States who expect to secure the payment of the war debt of the Southern Confederacy.

Such talk as the following from the Memphis Appeal, one of the strongest Democratic papers of the South, distinctly shows how much occasion the Republicans have for waving the bloody shirt:

"The negroes of the south must be guaranteed free speech and a free ballot at any cost, and the Democratic party in all the States must make it a part of their creed to compel it. The man who obstructs free speech or a free ballot at the south is an enemy not only to the institutions of the country, but in an especial sense is an enemy of our section."

Assuredly Mr. Sitting Bull with his Sioux warriors, have more than held their own in the late Indian campaign. A message has been sent him from the Indian Agency to come in and treat with the authorities. So it seems that the annihilation and extermination of the savages was only talk and Custer and his brave companions are likely to go unavenged. The Indian Bureau undoubtedly prefers to swindle their wards rather than destroy them. There's millions in it.

George McGowen Esq. Chairman of the Philadelphia Democratic City executive committee states that there are at least 40,000 fraudulent votes registered in that city. The Republicans seem determined to keep up the old system of fraud which was carried out so successfully when Mr. Buckalew ran for governor and was elected, but counted out by the rascally politicians of Philadelphia, aided by the repeaters and ballot box stuffers, some of whom were convicted only to be pardoned by the President.

The Philadelphia Times says of the refutation of the charges against Gov. Tilden in connection with his income tax, that "the dispassionate reader will be amazed, after perusing it, at the mendacity that has characterized his accusers," and the answer is given "item item by with a minuteness of detail that forbids the possibility of evasion or concealment, and no unbiased mind will [illegible] regard the Democratic candidate for [illegible]ent as fully vindicated."

[illegible]nel Forney says that if Tilden were his brother he wouldn't vote for him—and we're inclined to think that if such were the fact, neither would any one else. Chicago Times.

LIES WELL STUCK TO.

The tenacity with which the Radical organs hold on to the lies told by their leaders, and long since exploded, is remarkable even in these days of disregard of truth and decency. For instance, one of these sheets now before us says of Mr. Tilden: "During the war he was a copperhead or rebel sympathiser giving aid and comfort to the enemy." Messrs. Chas. A. Dana and P. H. Watson, both Republicans and both Assistant Secretaries of War under Edwin M. Stanton state on the contrary that Mr. Tilden was an earnest supporter of the Union cause who was consulted by President Lincoln and E. M. Stanton. Does this look as if he was a "rebel sympathiser?" The same paper further alludes to Mr. Tilden as "the associate and counsellor of Tweed and other rascals." All the world knows that without the indifatigable labors of Mr. Tilden Tweed would not yet have been brought to justice. Again this same paper refers to the income tax slander as if it still possessed vitality, although the charges have been disposed of item by item and in one case atleast, the New York Times, the author of the charges, has apologized and retracted.

The reiteration of these stale slanders is both silly and useless. There are few men of ordinary intelligence who will be deceived by it or believe that the same man who, as a private citizen, was landed to the skies by the Times, and others of its kind, could become in a moment after his nomination for President a monster of iniquity, a perjurer, a thief and a ballot box stuffer. It's too ridiculous for serious contemplation.

A Word to Workingmen.

This campaign is yours. It is for your families, and your action at the polls in November will give evidence of the fact whether or not you care more for your wives and children than for mere party. What is your situation now? If you have employment, does the mere pittance you receive for your hard labor suffice to furnish you with the necessaries of life? Are you able to raise money enough at the end of every month to pay your rent without depriving your children of bread?

Now is the time for action. Let your voices be raised for a change: let your votes be cast for a change. Reform is the watchword, and to effect a reform a change in administration is the first step. Your condition cannot be made any worse under the guidance of Uncle Sammy Tilden than it is to-day, and you have the assurance of history that a change of rulers after a panic always restored confidence and brought good times in its train.

Can you longer hesitate? Look at your fellow men, in great numbers, discharged every day. Look at Altoona where the Pennsylvania R. R. Co., was compelled to discharge over fifteen hundred men within the past two weeks, and the end is not yet. A hard winter is approaching, and if the demand for a change is not ratified at the polls, woe betide the sufferers. During the past three years you have hardly made money enough to keep soul and body together, and if Hayes is elected it will be but a continuance of the present administration, present hard times, and thieves in office.

Laboring men, give this matter your attention! Wives of laboring men, assist in the fight, persuade your husbands to cast one vote for you and your children. Give them to understand that they have voted for party, low wages and starvation long enough.

The N. Y. Sun says:—A correspondent of the Herald with Terry's command, in a letter which we copy elsewhere, makes some startling statements in relation to the massacre of the gallant Custer and his men The charges are of a grave nature, and cannot be allowed to rest. It is well known that Gen. Custer was displaced from the position which he was to have held in the movement against the Sioux because he gave testimony relating to abuses in the War Department when he was summoned to appear before a Congressional committee in Washington; and it is equally well known that the military toadies of the Administration have endeavored to malign him since his heroic death. It is boldly charged by the Herald correspondent that the slaughter of this officer, and of the troops who were with him, was caused by the failure of other officers to support him when they had it in their power to render effective aid and that through fear of persecution by the existing administration, officers and men who know the truth are prevented from vindicating Gen. Custer's memory. The conduct of this disgraceful Sioux war should receive thorough investigation as soon as Congress reassembles, for if the whole truth should be brought to light, the nation would for the first time learn the extreme depths of depravity which Grant's Administration has sounded.

The Republicans are making strenuous efforts to carry Bloomsburg on November 7th. They are going to every voter in the district and soliciting his support. As there are some voters who are easily influenced, the result will be a Democratic defeat here, unless we arouse to action. Somebody must work, everybody must work. It will not do for us to sit passively by, and allow the election to go by default. It is the duty of all democrats to assist in bringing out every voter, to hold the doubtful ones, and to secure new allies. Put on your armor and join in the great battle against fraud and corruption, and in favor of better times.

The town elections of Connecticut were held on Monday last. The returns are too meagre to give the results. The first State election of Colorado was held on Tuesday. No official reports have been made. The Chairman of the Republican State Committee telegraphed that the Republicans had 2,000 majority in the State, four hours before the polls closed and before a vote had been counted. This may or may not be true. At the last election for delegate from the territory the Democratic candidate was elected by over 2,000 majority.

The stock of the Reading R. R. Co., which on Thursday of last week was quoted at 44, fell on Saturday to 23½. It is difficult to ascertain what caused this depression, but we are inclined to believe that the figures will not remain for any length of time at the present low rate and that the stock will rise as rapidly as it fell.

General Braxton T. Bragg, dropped dead in Galveston, one day last week while crossing the street. He was 61 years of age. During the war he served in the Confederate army and reached the grade of General, having been promoted to that position after the death of Gen. Albert S. Johnston.

The exact Democratic majority in Alabama is 42,395. Two years ago it was 13,190 and four years ago the Republicans carried the State by 10,828, a change in four years of 53,223. Troops needed down their.

The New Orleans Bulletin says there are lots of Radicals in that State who would come out for Hayes if the keepers of the penitentiary and of the several jails in the State would permit them to do so.

LETTER FROM CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS.

The following letter is addressed to Daniel Magone, jr., the chairman of the New York state democratic committee, in response to an invitation to speak at a mass meeting of the democracy of the city of New York at Cooper Institute held on Friday evening last. It is the boldest and most aggressive declaration that has come from any of the distinguished liberal republicans who have declared for Tilden, Hendricks and Reform:

QUINCY, Sept. 25, 1876.—Dear Sir—Absence from the city has prevented me from answering promptly your letter of the 20th inst. If I were younger it would be an agreeable duty to perform the task to which you invite me, but I have not done anything of the kind for fifteen years, and am now in my seventieth year. Should I accept one invitation it would probably give rise to others which would have an equal claim. My judgment is that I had better stay at home. Yet I think I fully appreciate the importance of this canvass. It is narrowing itself daily more and more into a struggle between the people and the managers who hold the official organization of the country for their own exclusive benefit. From the days of Credit Mobilier down to the last exposures made by the investigations of the last congress there is only one conclusion to be drawn, and that is the prevalence of corruption almost everywhere in the republican organization. The honest men do, indeed, make brave and sincere efforts to resist this baleful influence, but they are too often defeated to raise any just hopes of ultimate success. This struggle has been going on for years, and no material change for the better has yet been effected. The time has now come for a radical change, and the substitution of a wholly new influence tied up by no restrictions other than the genuine wishes of honest men of all parties. When in a great popular convention of a party to nominate a candidate for the presidency, one gentleman deeply compromised by the investigations of a committee of the house of representatives comes within twenty-five votes of a nomination, and another, who really did honor to himself by fearless and effective exposures of corruption in high places, could not command many more than a hundred votes, it seems to me that it is high time for a change in the public opinion. Neither is the case improved by a view of the manner in which the canvass has been carried on. The great effort of the republicans seems to be to operate on the popular passions excited during the late civil war. Instead of repeating the honorable call of President Grant, "Let us have peace!" the cry is for raising what may prove another war. And why is this? Only because the people in the southern states choose to vote as they please, without regard to the corrupt combination of office holders all over the country, wielded by equally corrupt combinations of legislators at the seat of government to perpetuate their own power. Verily, verily, if the people are wise they will lay down party and seize the present opportunity to make a change. I am very truly yours.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS.

A Self-Confessed Slanderer.

If the reply of the Tribune to Judge Sinnott's refutal of the Times' slanders is amusing, the reply of the Times is pitiable. It is a perfect jumble of retractions, reassertions, corrections and contradictions. The Times actually confesses that it charged a respectable citizen (never mind his candidacy for the presidency,) with "perjury," because he did not, as the Times does, confound "earnings" with "receipts." In relation to one of its charges, the fifth, it admits that it has never had any proof of that charge whatever, and yet has never ceased to reiterate it in and out of "campaign supplements" and elsewhere. Here are its own words, the italics being ours:

"Fifth—It is asserted that the Toledo & Wabash railroad company never was a client of Mr. Tilden, and that neither in 1862 nor at any other time did he receive any fees from it. That we must accept as conclusive. Proof of our charge was promised from authorities in which we had confidence, but in its absence that item must be withdrawn."

Must it, indeed! Here is a public journal openly confessing that it made a charge of perjury and swindling against one of the most eminent citizens of the United States not in the least on proof, but on the promise of proof, which promise having never been fulfilled, the calumniator, upon being confronted by the object of his calumny, magnanimously "withdrew" the charge!

Is it necessary to add one word to the damning picture which the Times here paints of itself? —N. Y. World.

FACE THE FIGURES.

The annexed table shows the fact, that with due exertion, Tilden cannot be defeated. We do not concede South Carolina, Pennsylvania nor New Hampshire. The Radicals can gain no comfort from this exhibit.

Mr. Blaine of Maine seems to have been a trifle out of the way in his claim of 16000 Republican majority in the State. The official returns give 11,183 majority—a difference of 4,817. Blaine of Maine should not be so hasty in making up his estimates or people will say, as in fact many do, that he was lying for political effect.

Gen. Wade Hampton is represented as having recently asserted on the stump in South Carolina this: "The South did not fight for slavery in the late war. Gen. Robert E. Lee told me that whatever way the war ended the colored people would be free."

Have you tried Kirby's WildCherry Cough Balsam? A very palateable compound for the various affections of the throat and lungs it has been used with success, in seven cases of asthma giving instant relief and in many cases effecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents per bottle and positively warranted to give entire satisfaction or money refunded.

Kirby's Magic Relief for the instant cure of severe and acute pains.

Kirby's Tasteless Worm Lozenges, pleasant, safe and effectual.

Kirby's Horse and Cattle Powders are the best powders for stock, manufactured. Try them and be convinced.

There are sixty-nine German papers published in Wisconsin. Sixty-five of them support Tilden, one undecided, and three for Hayes. There is not much doubt how the German vote will be cast. It will be almost solid for Tilden, Carl Schurz to the contrary notwithstanding.

Brother Blaine seems to be in first class physical condition It is not often that a man so suddenly and so completely recovers from a sun-stroke. But Congress has adjourned, and Mulligan has gone home.—N. Y. Sun.

Important to Centennial Visitors.

Many of our readers who yet intend to visit Philadelphia, will wish to do so at the least possible cost and trouble. They will not wish to pay hotel rates when they can obtain good accommodations at private and boarding houses at one-third hotel rates. During September and October the crowds will be so large that they cannot be accomodated at hotels, and to avoid trouble on their arrival all should know where they are going to stop, before leaving home. You can obtain good accommodations by the week for from $5 to $10, or by the day from $1 to $2. To do this you must write to J. Weaver & Co., 1318 Market street, Philadelphia, and they will, on receipt of $1, to pay them for their trouble and expense, send you a list of one hundred boarding houses, giving the prices charged by the day or week. You can then select a place for yourself, and make arrangements direct with the parties you wish to stop with. In this way you can save from $10 to $25. Should you wish to stop at a hotel they will make all necessary arrangements for you and charge you but $1. This is our advice. Take it. State what paper you saw this in.

DYSPEPSIA! DYSPEPSIA! DYSPEPSIA!

Dyspepsia is the most perplexing of all human ailments. Its symptoms are almost infinite in their variety and the forlorn and despondent victims of the disease often fancy themselves the prey, in turn, of every known malady. This is due, in part to the close sympathy which exists between the stomach and the brain, and in part also to the fact that any disturbance of the digestive functions necessarily dis disorders the liver, the bowels and the nervous system and effects, to some extent, the quality of the blood.

E. F. Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron is a sure cure. This is not a new preparation, to be tried and found wanting, it has been prescribed daily for many years in the practice of eminent physicians with unparalled success; it is not expected or intended to cure all the diseases to which the human family is subject, but warranted to cure Dyspepsia in its most obstinate form. Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron never fails to cure. Symptoms of Dyspepsia are loss of appetite, wind and rising of the food, dryness of the mouth, heartburn, distension of the stomach and bowels, constipation, headache, dizziness, sleeplessness and low spirits. Try the great remedy and be convinced of its merits. Get the genuine. Take only Kunkel's, which is put only in $1 bottles. Depot 259 sale by all Druggists and dealers everywhere.

Ask for E. F. Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron and take no other, six bottles for $5.00 or $1. per bottle.

Worms! Worms! Worms!

E. F. Kunkel's Worm Syrup never fails to destroy Pin, Seat and Stomach worms. Dr. Kunkel, the only successful Physician who removes Tape worm in 2 hours, alive with head, and no fee until removed. Common sense teaches if Tape worm be removed all other worms can be readily destroyed. Send for circular to E. F. Kunkel, 259 North Ninth street, Philadelphia, Pa. or call on your druggist for a bottle of Kunkel's Worm Syrup, price $1. It never fails. October.

Col. J. G. Freeze will address the Democratic Club of this town to-morrow night.

The attention of tax collectors is called to the notice of the County Commissioners to be found in our advertising columns.

William H. Snyder, County Superintendent of Public Schools, spent three or four days last week visiting the schools of this town.

The Bloomsburg furnaces are running to their fullest capacity.—Gazette & Bulletin.

Not exactly; the Irondale Company are using but one of their two furnaces.

Hereafter, until further notice, the evening service at St. Paul's Episcopal Church will commence at seven o'clock instead of half past seven.

A Tilden and Hendricks Club was organized at Light Street on Friday night last. Jacob Terwilliger Esq., was elected President and O. P. Ent, Secretary.

J. F. Caldwell has opened a Bakery and Confectionery in H. C. Hower's store room on Main street. E. Jacobs will do the baking and of course it will be first class.

The making of apple butter is going on with great vigor and the apple crop is so large that there need be no fear of a scarcity of this favorite table sauce for the coming year.

Go and see John Thompson's Troupe at the Opera House on Tuesday evening, October 10th, in the sensational Drama of "Moses." This Troupe has been here before, and drew large houses.

Nicholas F. Seybert the ex-County Commissioner, is said to be in California. His friends say he will remain there for the balance of his life before he will suffer an arrest.—Record of the Times.

The attention of our readers is called to the large number of local notices this week. Among them will be found the names of our best merchants, those who do an extensive business and consequently keep a full and complete stock.

C. G. Barkley, Esq. is building a stone culvert under the front yard of his house on the corner of Market and Fourth streets. The ground has caved in several times, and Mr. B is putting it in shape so that there will be no danger hereafter.

We have not heard that any steps have yet been taken towards the erection of a new county jail. Two Grand Juries have recommended it in their reports, and the Court has approved the reports. The work is now in the hands of the County Commissioners.

The Williamsport Gazette & Bulletin announces the first snow of the season in that city on Thursday of last week, September 28th. Snow is reported as having fallen in Wayne county and in several places in New England. This looks like an early winter.

The hog cholera prevails in several of the counties adjacent to our own, and the losses have already aggregated a large sum. Our farmers would do well to keep a sharp eye on their pigs, and, should the disease break out here, promptly destroy the infected animals.

All persons wishing to exhibit at our coming Fair will please call at the Secretary's office, and have the entries made, or send a list of articles to his address previous to the first day of the Fair.

T. JEFF. VANDERSLICE, Sec.

Apples are so plentiful in some parts of Massachusetts that the farmers are feeding them to their cows, thinking it more profitable than making cider at present rates. The same thing may happen in this county if the price of cider goes much lower. We have already heard of sales at $1 per barrel.

"Billy," the accomplished clerk at Yaple's Hotel stables, claims to have the original "dog in the manger," although he once belonged to Barney Stohner.—Mountain Echo.

Some mistake about this. We have known Barney for many years and are confident that he never owned that kind of a dog—in fact we don't know of a man less likely to own such a beast.

There was a meeting of the Democratic Club of this town at the Opera House last Saturday evening. An address was made by Capt. Brockway, and brief remarks by C. G. Barkley and Wm. Krickbaum. The Drum Corps was in attendance, and after the meeting was over marched through town playing lively airs. There is certainly something exhilarating in the music of fife and drum, and the boys played well.

Cattle in Wayne and adjoining counties are dying from a singular disease. They are attacked by a tick which bores into their flesh, causing inflammation and resulting in death in a few hours. This tick is of a kind hitherto unknown, and no remedy for the attacks of the insect has yet been made known. Farmers in this county had best examine their cattle carefully every few days in order to detect at once the appearance of the pests, should they unfortunately find their way into this county.

We regret to record the sudden and unexpected demise of one of our oldest inhabitants—in the dog line. Joe, the favorite canine of J. K. Grotz, Esq., accompanied his master on a fishing excursion last Saturday, and in some way managed to get under the wheels of a hand car on which his master and some friends were going to Rupert, and was instantly killed. Joe was an intelligent and affectionate animal, and we doubt not his loss will be keenly felt by Mr. Grotz.

The List of Premiums offered by the Columbia County Agricultural Society will be found on another page. Everybody should be getting ready for the Fair, which opens on Wednesday next. The exhibition this year is expected to be something unusual, and every one who has articles worth displaying should bring them out. It would not be a bad idea to have a Centennial department, in which might be exhibited articles used by our forefathers in revolutionary times.

It is a good thing for the Columbian that the senior editor of this paper did "carpet-bag" into Columbia county (even though it was before either editor of the Columbian made his appearance in the county). Last week's issue of their journal contained eleven personal notices of him. Did the "personal rub" have the privileges of the editorial chair once again?—Republican.

The COLUMBIAN will never fail to take notice of public nuisances, when circumstances require it. Our neighbor is getting so badly mixed that he can't count straight. Last week's issue of this paper contained five allusions to the senior editor instead of eleven. We mentioned the Republican once or twice, and perhaps the post master is under the impression that he is the Republican. But we always had a kind of an idea that Brown had something to do with it.

A. J. Evans has begun operations at the corner of Main and Iron streets, and will soon erect a three-story brick building with three store rooms on the first floor. This will be a great improvement on the old buildings. Mr. Evans deserves much credit for his enterprise.

Mr. Byron D. Koons, at one time clerk at the Mansion House, now of Shickshinny, was married on Wednesday of last week, to Miss Annie C. Dumas, of Philadelphia.—Mauch Chunk Democrat.

And he never said a word to us about it, nor did he send us a particle of wedding cake! Nevertheless, we wish him "many happy days."

We are informed that a certain party in town has threatened to discharge any of his hands who do not vote the republican ticket. We give due notice that if proof can be furnished of such an illegal attempt to influence votes, the offender will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law, even if it scalps the best man in Bloomsburg. The penalty for such an offence is five hundred dollars fine and imprisonment for twelve months.

In order to live cheap in Berwick, Columbia county, they patronize vendors of rotten hams and rusty mackerel. That may be a good way, too, but none of that for us.—Mountain Democrat.

We don't understand the above item, but know that it is a frightful slander. The Berwick people ought undoubtedly to sue the Democrat.

SHAKE.—Our friend Kester, a son of the late Judge Kester, and who read law at this place with Samuel Knorr Esq., has come out for Tilden & Hendricks, and recently addressed a Democratic Club at Hazleton. Like thousands of other young men in the country he refuses to identify himself with a rotten and corrupt party.

It is pleasurable to be able to state that the Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre Coal Co., have resumed work at all their collieries with a full force at full time. Iron manufacturers on the Lehigh are putting their furnaces in blast and purchasing large amounts of coal. 15,000 employees are at work for the company. This begins to look as if times were getting better and that business will steadily improve.

J. J. Brower, Esq., has had the cornices and woodwork of his building on Main street painted and sanded in imitation of granite, instead of brown stone, which it has been heretofore. We cannot say that it is much of an improvement, as there is not enough contrast between the cornice and the slate of the French roof back of it. The brick work is also being painted, and this will undoubtedly improve the appearance of the building.

The weather has grown so cool of late as to necessitate the putting up of stoves. Every year hundreds of fires occur, destroying thousands of dollars' worth of property, because people are too careless or indolent to ascertain whether the flues are in order. No better method of destruction by fire is to be found than to allow flues to be filled with soot, which is readily ignited by the flames of a brisk fire in the stove. A little care and attention will save great annoyance and possibly pecuniary loss.

Jacob Huntsinger, president of the Miners' Trust Co Bank of Pottsville, was held in $152,000 bail on the 19th inst., on charges of embezzlement and making fraudulent bank statements. Bail was furnished by his sons. On Friday he was arrested on five charges: fraudulent dividends declared in 1875 and 1876, two charges of embezzlement, and receipt of money under false pretenses. $238,000 bail was demanded, his sons could furnish but $8,000, and he was sent to jail in default of the balance. $390,000 bail is not easy to obtain in these hard times.

We are delighted to hear that tidies are going out of fashion. Tidies as most people know are those diabolically ingenious little mats which are stuck on the backs of chairs but which never stay there, at least when a man sits in the chair. The ladies have always taken much interest in these little affairs, but we never knew a man who did. We hope that the rumor is true and that the fair sex will devote their energies to the manufacture of other articles which will not have the effect of producing inaudible but very earnest profanity on the part of their gentlemen friends. If, however, tidies are to remain in use they should be spiked or riveted so as to remain immovable.

There has been so much said about the oppression of the poor man by the Town Council, in not allowing cows to run at large, that a gentleman has furnished us statistics from the assessment books, showing that the poor man is not injured at all by the operation of the ordinance, but that a large proportion of cow owners are also owners of real estate. The assessment book for 1876 shows that the number of cows owned in the built up and suburban districts by persons owning real estate is seventy-seven; and the assessed value of property of the owners of these seventy-seven cows is $127,395, which is perhaps half the actual value of the property. There are only fifteen cows in the town owned by parties who have no real estate assessed to them. And yet the Town authorities are asked to allow ninety-two cows the privilege of roaming at large through the streets in order that fifteen cows whose owners have no real estate may be permitted to pick a living at the public expense.

We desire to say a few words to those gentlemen who are members of the Standing Committee in the different townships in the county. The campaign now in progress is one of great importance, involving as it does the election of a President and Vice President of the United States. It will to a great extent depend upon your earnest and energetic efforts whether the full Democratic vote of the county is polled. See to it that so far as lies in your power no vote shall be left at home on the 7th of November next. Your position is not one of mere honor, but one which demands work, unceasing work from this time until the election. Arouse interest in the men of your own party, and if possible in those of the opposition. Arrange your plans to have such voters as live at a distance from the polls brought in, and also provide for the carriage of those whose age or infirmities require it. In a word, be vigilant, zealous and active, and Columbia county will this year give a larger majority than ever before.

RUNAWAY COUPLE AT SHAMOKIN.—The Times of last week gives the following: On Thursday evening of last week a young couple from Danville came to Shamokin and registered themselves at the house of a mutual friend on Commerce street, within sight of the Times office. A clergyman was sent for and the couple was speedily united in the bands of wedlock. To the minister's questions in regard to age, etc., satisfactory answers were given and it was supposed the couple were starting out in their new life attended with the blessings of the fond parents on both sides of the freundschaft. On Friday a gentleman was noticed driving up Commerce street at a furious speed, and as he halted in front of the house where the young married couple were stopping, it was at once conjectured that there was a misunderstanding somewhere. The furious driver was the venerable parent of the bride, and he had forgotten to give his consent to the proposed marriage before the couple left Danville. He walked in upon the bride and groom with a suddenness that no doubt astonished the young people, and the next minute a lady was noticed rushing out of the house, and she fainted over an ash heap in the street. What transpired after that we could not learn, but as the irate parent seemed in a better frame of mind when he started for home during the afternoon, it is supposed that all was forgiven. The young couple are still here and the groom has obtained employment this week and is trying to earn pork and beans to last his little family until the coal combination reconstructs itself.

Beach Haven seems to be favored with a thieving class of desperadoes of late. The residence of D. G. Driesbach, Esq., was entered during his absence on Friday night of last week and $500, a diamond ring and a lot of wearing apparel and fancy notions were stolen valued at $200. What a pity it is these thieving vultures are allowed to escape without taking with them a good charge of cold lead.—Berwick Independent.

The "hayes & wheeler" club are so hard run for material to furnish "mirth, song and jokes" at their meetings that they resort to novel methods of obtaining it. They invite gentlemen to attend their gatherings, and after they get them there, call loudly for a speech. The unsuspecting victims say a few words in self defence, and then sit down, whereupon the Republicans makes fun of them. That is where the "mirth and jokes" come in. The "hayes & wheeler" choir from down town furnishes the "song."

CENTRALIA.—The great scare at Centralia caused by the caving in of the mine in the central part of the town, making quite a good sized hole and dropping a pair of horses so deep that they have never returned, we say the great scare occasioned by this catastrophe has entirely subsided and people have resumed the even tenor of their way feeling every assurance that no further trouble is to be anticipated. We understand the squeeze in the mine has ceased and it has been so timbered and secured as to make everything safe in the future.—Advocate.

Our friend Beckley is rejoicing in the belief that by buttonholing everybody on the street, and soliciting votes for the republican candidates, he is going to carry this town at the election. He is circulating the report that a number of Democrats have promised him to vote the republican ticket. We have been informed by several gentlemen that they have been asked to break over party lines, by Beckley, and that they promised him to do so; but, said they, if Beckley is green enough to believe we will do it, he can count on us until November 7th when he will learn his mistake.

NOTICE TO BOARDING HOUSE KEEPERS.

The Philadelphia Ledger of the 20th ult. gives the following, which may be of interest to boarding house keepers in this county: "Joseph Hass, boarding house keeper on Market street, above 16th, was yesterday heard before Alderman Carpenter on a charge of evading the law relating to boarding houses, requiring the rates of board to be hung up in the rooms, and conspicuously in other portions of the house. He was held for trial." The act of Assembly was passed in 1876, and has already been published by us for the instruction of our readers. We have on hand a supply of cards containing the act, &c., and parties interested had better secure them at once.

The following conversation between the foreman of a certain manufacturing establishment not a hundred miles from here and a vendor of garden truck was overheard by a friend and reported to us. It shows to what means the republicans are resorting to carry the election.

FOREMAN.—"Charley, have you got any cabbage plants for sale?"

TRUCKMAN.—"Yes, sir."

The Rescue Hook and Ladder Company has met with considerable success in obtaining subscriptions for the purchase of apparatus. Their truck has been ordered and is expected early next week, in time for the Fair. The reorganization of the Rescue was a very proper step, and no doubt will result in the saving of much property in case of fire. The existence of a second fire company suggests some thoughts. All of the fire apparatus has been purchased by contributions from the citizens or by appropriations of Town money, and is therefore the property of the people. It is to the interest of the people that it should be properly cared for and protected. The Friendship engine is housed in a barn on a back alley. The Rescue truck will have no place for its protection, and the authorities who represent the people ought to make provision for both companies in the way of a convenient engine house. This could be done at a comparatively small expense. Our citizens have a sufficient amount invested in fire apparatus to induce them to take some interest in the matter, and at the same time to entitle them to protection from fire in the most effective manner. This can only be accomplished by a thorough organization of both companies into one department, the whole to be under the control of a chief engineer appointed by the Town Council or elected by the firemen; in either case he should be a cool headed, active person, who possesses the faculty of controlling a body of men under exciting circumstances. An ordinance should be passed putting all fire companies now in existence or hereafter to be organized, under the control of the Council, and then the people may begin to realize that the firemen are for them, and not merely private institutions. It would benefit the companies by giving them a permanent and respectable machine house, and it would benefit the town by making a well disciplined and effective fire department. And last but not least, it would lead, sooner than anything else, to the erection of water works by securing the sympathies and awakening the interest of the people.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

The regular monthly meeting of the Town Council was held at the Council Chamber on Wednesday evening last. All the members present except President Lowenberg, in whose absence E. R. Drinker presided. Minutes of last meeting read and approved. The report of Street Commissioner Jacoby for last month was presented, showing an expenditure of $495.75. On motion of Elwell and Holmes the report was ordered to be filed and payment to be made. Gas bill for street lamps amounting to $77.00 ordered to be paid; also bill of I. W. McKelvy for four dozen buckets for fire company, amounting to $10.50; also bill of Rollins & Holmes for moving street lamp at Second and East streets, $9.12; also bill of O. A. Jacoby for cobble stones, $111.15; also bill of Isaiah Hagenbuch for stove pipe and repairs to stove in lock up, $2.50; also bill of M. C. Woodward, for services, $63.00. Thomas Hickey was appointed policeman in place of John T. Reed, who has left town. The street commissioner was directed to raise Second street to grade at the intersection of Second and East. On motion of Holmes and Knorr the grade as fixed by the surveyor on the extension of East street from Seventh street to Canal street was adopted. It was ordered that lot owners on East street from the north side of Sixth street to Seventh street and on Seventh street from the west side of East street to the road leading from Seventh street to the canal bridge at Neal's Furnace and on the extension of East street southward from Seventh to Canal street be required to grade curb and pave their sidewalks; width of sidewalk to be six feet, pavement to be four feet wide and laid one foot from the curb, and to be done within sixty days. The street commissioner was directed to grade East street from Sixth to Canal street. A committee consisting of Messrs. Holmes, Knorr and Hagenbuch was appointed to make a contract with the Gas Company for lighting the street lamps for a term of years, and report to the Council. An order for $36.66 in favor of W. Wirt for services two months as secretary of the Town Council was directed to be drawn. An ordinance to repeal ordinance No. 21, which forbids cattle running at large within certain limits, was defeated. Notice was given that an ordinance will be presented at the next meeting, providing for the organization of a Fire Department.

On motion Council adjourned.

An exchange warns its readers not to use wooden spittoons filled with saw-dust, and cites instances of several fires caused by the igniting of the saw-dust from lighted cigar stumps and ashes from pipes. As these spittoons are used in many of the stores and hotels in this county, the warning may be profitably heeded.

Heavy frosts are reported in Georgia, Tennessee and Alabama, which is an unusual occurrence so early in the Fall, and would seem to indicate a long and severe winter.

Read the following Letter.

From a highly respectable gentleman in Limestone, Montour Co., Pa.:

"This is to certify that I was pronounced by several physicians as consumptive, and had all the symptoms of the disease in its worst form—such as coughing, severe pains in the breast, shortness of breath, night sweats and extreme weakness and lassitude of my whole system. My family nearly all having died of the disease, I had given up all hope of recovery, as nothing gave me relief; but through the persuasion of a friend I was induced to try Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. The first bottle relieved me considerably and the third bottle cured me entirely. I now feel as well as I ever did in my life, and am able to follow my occupation of farmer as fully as any one. I also had a sister in a more advanced state of the disease, having been confined to her bed for over a year, and pronounced beyond hope by our best physicians. She was also entirely cured by the Wild Cherry, but it required six or eight bottles, and she still takes it occasionally as a preventative, being naturally weak-chested. I would sincerely urge all similarly affected to try Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, as I am satisfied that but for your own valuable remedy my sister and myself would not now be living. I would cheerfully answer any one who may address me on the subject and state our case more fully."

Worthy of Remembrance.

Why will you suffer violent pain, or be made uncomfortable, distressed in mind or body, when you can be instantly relieved and quickly cured by Benson's Capcine Porous Plasters. The ordinary Porous Plaster is an article of merit, yet its action is too slow, requiring days and weeks of continuous wear to effect a cure. Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster, being a great improvement over them, relieves you instantly and cures you quicker than any known plaster, liniment or compound.

Their action is more powerful than electricity and more certain. They are purely vegetable contain no mineral or metallic poisons. Their composition and properties are founded upon true medical skill, and are in no sense a patent medicine. They are endorsed by thousands of Physicians and Druggists of unimpeachable reputation, as being an article of genuine merit and worthy of public confidence. Try them and be convinced. Price 25 cents.

A genius out West has just patented a machine for making sweet potatoes. He is a brother of an old gentleman who put handles on prickly pears and sold them for curry combs

Nothing will surprise a married man so much as to go home and see his wife limping around the house with her little toe bandaged, saying that she doesn't see why he has to keep such an infernal edge on his razor.

A wag of a gourmand who had made himself ill by feasting on fish said he embodied the trio of the fiery furnace, thus—shad-rack, me-sick, and abed-we go.

Nothing pleases a fly so much as to be mistaken for a huckleberry, and if he can be baked in a cake and pass himself off upon the unwary as a currant, he dies without regret.

The young man who has got up a quartette of romantic friends and serenaded his girl for an hour, to find that the family is at the Thousand Islands, and only the gardener at home, realizes as few men can how fleeting and transitory are the hopes of life.

A young Highlander, taking leave of his sweetheart one Saturday evening, remarked, "I'll see ye at the kirk the morn if we're spared, 'an,' whether or no, I'll see ye on Monday.

A pair of slippers—a douple of eels. A man of steady habits—the man who always wears the same clothes Bills of exchange—lover's kisses. See-fare-ing men—railroad conductors.—Boston Traveller.

"Come, husband," said the wife of a Wall street noted broker, "it is time for us to get up the day is breaking." "Well, let it break," was the reply: "I don't hold any of its papers."

There is always a feeling of regret when we part forever with familiar objects, no matter how humble and unimportant they may be. This however, should not include any parting with a dog in a strange apple orchard.

The crocodile looks drowsily from the water, and, resting his hungry jaws upon the muddy bank, big tears are seen to gather and fall from his eyes as they dwell upon the stark and plump form of a native Yahoo. Oh, what longing is expressed in those tears! "I want to eat you." What more consumingly eloquent than that.

She was perched on a chair tacking up a window curtain. He was on the opposite of the street, observing her graceful form picturesquely outlined in the delicate drapery of lace, forming a pretty picture. Then followed a crash like that of the Bergen Hill explosion, and the fair picture disappeared in a halo of red and blue stripes.

TOUGH ON THE BATHER.—A sea captain of jocose humor, in a seacoast town met an acquaintance the other day who was rather noted for not very cleanly habits in person.

"Well," said the latter, "I have just been in bathing."

"You don't say so! Bathing, do you say?" asked the other. "And where did you go?"

"Oh, down to the beach."

"I am afraid, then, some of our vessels or boats will run foul of a new bank formed there of which they never heard before."

Shameless Parody.—Every one has admired Parthenia's definition of love to Ingomar:

"What love is, if thou wouldst be taught,
Thy heart must teach alone—
Two souls with but a single thought,
Two hearts that beat as one."

Some profane cynic, having no fear of Cupid before his eyes, perpetrates the following villainous parody:

"Love is a nightmare with one foot,
Two children with one bun.
Two turnips with a single root,
Two cabbage heads as one.

A CHRISTIAN WARNING.—She was a colored lady and attending a revival of religion, and had worked herself up to the extreme pitch of going to the good place in a moment, or sooner if possible. She gave vent to her feelings and exclaimed:

"I wish I was a June bug!"

A brother of sable hue, standing near by, inquired:

"Why do you want to be one?"

"That I might fly to my Jesus."

"You fool nigger; woodpecker kotch you fo' you get half way dar."

KIDNEY COMPLAINT.

Probably there is no complaint that afflicts the human system which is so little understood at the present time as some of the varied forms of Kidney Complaint.

There is no disease which causes such acute pain or more alarming in its results than when the kidneys fail to secrete from the blood the uric acid and other poisonous substances which the blood accumulates in its circulation through the system.

If from any cause the kidneys fail to perform the functions devolving upon them, the cumulations are taken up by the absorbents and the whole system thrown into a state of disease, causing great pain and suffering, and very often immediate death. Hence the importance of keeping the kidneys and blood in a healthy condition, through which all the impurities of the body must pass.

PAIN IN THE BACK.

There is no remedy known to medical science which has proved itself more valuable in cases of Kidney Complaints than the Vegetine. It acts directly upon the secretions, cleanses and purifies the blood, and restores the whole system to healthy action.

The following extraordinary cures of great sufferers who had been given up by the best physicians as hopeless cases, will speak for themselves, and should challenge the most profound attention of the medical faculty, as well as of those who are suffering from Kidney Complaint.

THE BEST MEDICINE.

EAST MARSHFIELD, Aug. 11, 1870.

MR. STEVENS: Dear Sir—I am seventy-one years of age; have suffered many years with Kidney Complaint, weakness in my back and stomach. I was induced by friends to try your Vegetine, and I think it the best medicine for weakness of the Kidneys I ever used. I have tried many remedies for this complaint and never found so much relief as from the Vegetine. It strengthens and invigorates the whole system. Many of my acquaintances have taken it, and I believe it to be good for all the complaints for which it is recommended. Yours truly,

JOSIAH H. SHERMAN

PRONOUNCED INCURABLE.

BOSTON, May 30, 1871.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.: Dear sir—I have been badly afflicted with Liver Complaint for ten years; have suffered great pain in my back, hips and side, with great difficulty in passing urine, which was often, and in very small quantities, frequently accompanied with blood and excruciating pain.

I have faithfully tried most of the popular remedies recommended for my complaint; I have been under the treatment of some of the most skillful physicians in Boston, all of whom pronounced my case incurable. This was my condition when I was advised by a friend to try Vegetine, and I could see the good effects from the first dose I took, and from that moment I kept on improving until I was entirely cured; taking in all, I should think, about six bottles.

It is, indeed, a valuable medicine, and if I should be afflicted again in the same way I would give a dollar a dose, if I could not get it without.

Respectfully, J. M. GILE.
361 Third Street, South Boston.

NEARLY BLIND.

H. R STEVENS Dear Sir—In expressing my thanks to you for benefits derived from the use of Vegetine, and to benefit others, I will state:—

When eight or nine years old I was afflicted with Scrofula, which made its appearance in my eyes face and head, and I was very near blind for two years. All kinds of operations were performed on my eyes, and all to no good result. Finally the disease principally settled in my body, limbs and feet, and at times in an aggravated way.

Last summer I was, from some cause, weak in my spine and kidneys, and it was at times very hard to retain the urine. Seeing your advertisement in the Commercial, I bought a bottle of VEGETINE, and commenced using according to directions. In two or three days I obtained great relief. After using four or five bottles I noticed it had a wonderful effect on the rough, scaly blotches on my body and legs.—I still used Vegetine and the humorous sores one after another disappeared until they were all gone, and I attribute the cure of the two diseases to Vegetine as the only reliable remedy. Once more accept my thanks, and believe me to be, Very respectfully,

AUSTIN PARROTT.
Dec. 1, 1872. No. 25 Gano St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, etc., are always unpleasant, and at times they become the most distressing and dangerous diseases that can affect the human system. Most diseases of the Kidneys arise from impurities in the blood, causing humors which settle on these parts. Vegetine excels any known remedy in the whole world for cleansing and purifying the blood, thereby causing a healthy action to all the organs of the body.

Vegetine is Sold by all Druggists. Sept. 15-1m.

SIDDALL'S Magnetic Soap.

The Cheapest Soap that can be used for the following Reasons:

1st.—One bar will go as far as two of any other.

2d.—Only half the usual rubbing being required, there is a saving of more than the entire cost of the Soap in labor alone.

3d.—The Clothes are made SWEET, CLEAN, and WHITE without BOILING or SCALDING, thus all injury to them is avoided. There is a saving in fuel and hard work, and the washing is done in about half the usual time.

It is also guaranteed under a penalty of fifty dollars not to injure the clothes or hands, and as one trial will enable any person to ascertain the truth of these statements, it would never pay the proprietor to engage in an extensive system of advertising and claim such decided merit for his soap unless he knew from positive experience that it would prove to be in every respect what is claimed for it.

This is also a superior Soap for SHAVING and TOILET purposes.

ROOFS.

Why not make your Roofs last a lifetime, and save the expense of a new roof every 10 or 15 years. It can be done; if you use Slate Paint, it will not only resist the effects of water and wind, but shield you from Fire.

OLD ROOFS,

Protect your Buildings by using Slate Paint, which neither cracks in winter nor runs in Summer. Old shingle roofs can be painted looking much better, and lasting longer than new shingles without the paint, for one-fourth the cost of re-shingling. On decayed shingles it fills up the holes and pores, and gives a new substantial roof, that lasts for years.—Curled or warped shingles it brings to their places and keeps them there. This paint requires no heating, is applied with a brush and very ornamental. It is chocolate color, when first applied but changes to a uniform slate color, and is to all intents and purposes slate.

ON TIN OR IRON ROOFS,

the red color is the best paint in the world for durability. It has a heavy body, easily applied, expands by heat, contracts by cold, dries slow and never cracks nor scales. One coat equals 4 of any other.

NEW ROOFS,

Mills, foundries, factories and dwellings a specialty. Materials complete for a new steep or flat Roof of Rubber Roofing cost but about half the price of re-shingling. For Private houses, barns and buildings of all descriptions it is far superior to any other roofing in the world for convenience in laying, and combines the ornamental appearance, durability, and fire-proof qualities of tin, at one-third the cost. No Tar or Gravel Used.
